

POLICY REPORTS

ANIMAL HEALTH & WELFARE

Bluetongue

- Since the preliminary findings of two suspected BTV cases on a Co. Down farm on the 3rd December, 4 farms have identified positive cases of BTV-3. These farms were all placed within a temporary control zone and movement restrictions have been put in place.
- From Friday, 19 December 2025, all animals, except for animals that have tested positive for Bluetongue (BTV), will be free to move under general licence within and out of the Temporary Control Zone (TCZ) unless they are in certain high-risk categories.
- High Risk categories are defined as:
 - Cattle: All females 18 months and older and bulls 14 months and older
 - Sheep and goats: Breeding males
 - Deer, llamas and alpacas: Pregnant females and breeding males
- Those within these high-risk categories will be permitted to move under specific licence but are subject to certain additional requirements. Dependent on animal category, these requirements include either proof of a negative pregnancy test, or negative pre-movement testing or proof of previous Bluetongue vaccination.
- Moves to England, Scotland and Wales will be allowed from 10/12/2025. Susceptible species, including cattle, sheep, goats, deer and alpacas can now be moved with no requirements beyond those required by normal process. Moves will be permitted for direct slaughter, moves to markets and also for breeding and production. DAERA will conduct background checks to ensure that no animals are moved to GB from the disease control zones.
- Bluetongue cases still continue to rise across GB, with 266 farms affected since July 2025. An all-Wales restriction zone was introduced on 10th November which means that there can be free movement of livestock between England and Wales, however there are still restrictions on germinal products. Restrictions are still in place for movement from England to Scotland or GB to NI.

TB

- bTB Costings Project – UFU, Dairy Council and LMC met with The Andersons Centre in December and the results to date were presented. Analysis of the questionnaire results is complete, the financial modelling is almost completed and the case studies are being written currently. Results are positive so far, and the project is on track to be completed January 2026.
- TBPSG – The AHW committee agreed that UFU do not support the cross-border regionalisation project and this was relayed to the CVO. This is due to aspects of the project which has not been co-designed, such as the region the project is being rolled out, the method of wildlife intervention, and the lack of communication with the TBPSG. Other workshop discussions in recent weeks have included pre/post movement testing, alternative control herds, and biosecurity assessment design.

- Herd keepers are being advised by DAERA that any 'resolved inconclusive' reactors should either be removed from the herd or finished and slaughtered promptly to reduce the risk of acting as a disease reservoir.
- DAERA are sending letters to herd keepers who have a resolved inconclusive animal in their herd outlining this advice.

EU Animal Welfare Laws

- The EU commission has released a consultation on the proposed new animal welfare on farm laws. This is likely to include a ban on cages (including poultry cages and pig farrowing crates), reduced stocking densities, potential ban on beak trimming/castration/dehorning, and changes to slaughter regulations. UFU have been involved in discussions with the other devolved farming unions regarding the proposals with all livestock species covered and a response to the consultation has been submitted.

- Four cases of HPAI H5N1 have been confirmed in either commercial or backyard flocks in NI. There have also been increased wild bird positives recently. - The UFU employed a legal team and key experts to submit a response to the DAERA consultation on the ammonia operational protocol in April which is used to determine planning applications and await a response. The Minister has recognised many other environmental issues cannot be improved due to ammonia planning policy but must act to ensure that replacement buildings and betterment are permitted. UFU continue to maintain pressure on the Minister to progress this issue particularly in light of moves in England to allow betterment to be recognised here. The UFU met in December on this and continues to lobbying while taking advice from our legal team.
